“ASSOCIATE” MEMBERS:

Professionals who are not members of a regulatory body, and who take 40 hours of Collaborative training, may be considered by practice groups for associate memberships. The OCLF recommends that associate members not be given full membership privileges such as being listed on the public website.

FOR ALL COLLABORATIVE PROFESSIONALS:

The OCLF recommends additional training in interest-based negotiation skills beyond the basic membership criteria for all collaborative professionals. We expect that members will continue to upgrade their skills through further training and professional development on an annual basis. An annual minimum requirement of 8 hours is recommended.
